Dr. Theresa S. Beyerle, Associate Director of the Institute for Teaching and Learning, has recently returned to The University of Akron to oversee and coordinate service learning and undergraduate research.

Beyerle earned her bachelor's in English from UA, a master's in teaching from Kent State, a master's in social administration from Case Western Reserve University, and a Ph.D. in public administration and urban studies from UA.

Beyerle brings more than 20 years of active involvement in the Akron community with an emphasis in the nonprofit and social service sectors.

She has been actively involved on campus, including participating in the Academic Leadership Forum, Make a Difference Day, Engagement Council, ITL service learning research team and other groups. Off campus, she has volunteered with the Rubber City Roller Girls, Habitat for Humanity, Rebuilding Together, Mature Services and others. She has also served on the boards of the YWCA of Summit County, Project LEARN, Coming Together Project, Women's History Project, Girl Scouts of North East Ohio, and Women's Network of Northeast Ohio. In addition, she is a graduate of Leadership Akron, and has earned many awards for her service to the community.
